group of welded, wrought and cut metal sculptures which were entirely original. He lived in poverty and was often forced to use junk metal for material. He was unable to have some of his works cast due to the cost. His daughter who was once married to Hans Hartung was able to commission several castings after his death.

Some of the objects will be for sale. One beautiful and unique piece RECLINING HEAD has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Porter for their growing collection of modern art.

The exhibition was organized by the Chalette Galerie, New York. It will remain in Cleveland through August 5.

Also being shown from July 10 through August 5 is an exhibition of JAPANESE SCREENS from The Cleveland Museum of Art Collection.
